

WHOLESALE / CBP

- Do I need an EIN to Buy Wholesale?

- You can buy wholesale goods from any legal entity as long as you have an employer identification number (EIN) and a seller's permit. The government requires businesses to complete these forms to track sales tax, income, and other business activity to the respective sources. Some states do not accept out of state seller's permits. California is one of them.
- Wholesalers are not required to charge sales tax to retailers because when a wholesaler sells to a retailer, that retailer is not the product's end user. Therefore, the wholesaler does not have to collect sales tax on the transaction when selling to a retailer that holds a business license and resale certificate/seller's permit compliant to the seller's state.

- What is a Wholesale Certificate/Seller's Permit?

- A wholesale license allows you to sell items at a wholesale or retail level and issue resale certificates to suppliers so you can avoid paying sales taxes. To get a Seller's Permit in California, you'll need to apply on the California Department of Tax and Fee Administration <https://www.cdtfa.ca.gov>
Gratefully Threaded resides in California; which will require you to have a CA Resale Certificate. California does NOT accept out of state Resale Certificates. You are NOT required to hold Resale Certificate if the state your business is in does NOT charge sales tax. You will still need to fill out the form provided by Gratefully Threaded, and then specify your state for sales tax to be excluded.

- What if I don't have a Business License or Resale Certificate

- If you do NOT reach the above requirements, your purchase will be classified as a "Customer Bulk Purchase" (CBP). CBP purchases may be required to pay sales tax on goods purchased. The order will be treated as any standard business sale.
